
The 15 Lines is made from one parchment sheet, not two. In total, the text makes up 7 pages. There are 113 letters in total in the Letters of Alif Laam Meem - which is over twice as large as the text in most modern Qurans. While it measures a little over a foot, it's assembled in an unusual way that has never been seen before or since in a Quran. The Quran's hadith (predictions) say that the prophet called it Quran Al-Mahfuz. Now the story of the Quran begins with the first verses of the first chapter. The first verse of surah Al-Fatiha is completed with just one letter "Alif" which is not part of the verses but used as a sign to begin after its recitation. The first person who completed Surah Al-Fatiha was Muhammad, this is known as Tashriq, i.e., "recitation itself". The first chapter, Al-Fatiha is completed with 33 letters which is of more or less of one third of the total number of letters in the whole Quran. It also comprises two different kinds of surahs following each other without any break, first Surah Al-Fatihah and on the other hand Surah Al-Baqarah. The first surah on its own comprises only 28 letters. The second chapter on its own comprises 3 verses adding to 43 letters. The third chapter alone comprises 24 letters. The next six chapters are pure Quranic verses without any ad hoc additions as are found in the content of subsequent chapters. Taj Company Quran 15 Lines Pdf Free Download The 6 chapters together comprise 152 letters so there remains 286 letters for the other 114 chapters. The remaining 114 chapters are made up of 25,000 verses, each verse is made up of 29 letters, so 750,000 letters altogether in the whole Quran. If you divide the number of 750,000 by 286 you get 2,777 which is added to or multiplied by fifteen you come to 19 or one less than 20 this again multiplied by 15 again gives you 216 or one less than 217 this is supposedly $19 \times 15 \times 217$ or 41 on one hand and on the other hand $19 \times 217 / 41$ which again is 41×19 , i.e. 499. each verse comprises of 29 letters. $750,000 + 499 = 1,766$ verses making a total of 2,865,766 letters as per the standard text of Hafis ibn Al-Mughaffal as found in Spain. In the first place it is necessary to point out that the Quran is not the Qur'an (Koran), which means "recitation" or "the Reciter". The 'Qur'an proper,' i.e. 'the final revelation brought down to Muhammad by God, emphasizes this fact even before mentioning its name (Qur'an).
